

Cape Cod Photo Exploration with Julia Cumes

September 21st, 2023, 4:30pm-7pm

Cape Cod photographer, Julia Cumes' one-evening Cape exploration class will introduce participants to some of the Cape's most picturesque and unique locations. From the Chatham Fish Pier with its colorful local fishing boats to the coastguard station at Chatham Light and beyond, participants will have the opportunity to capture the magic Cape Cod is known for from their own perspective. The class is scheduled for the two hours before sunset so we're hoping for golden hour light. Phone cameras, DSLRs or point-and-shoots are welcome. Bio:

Julia Cumes is a South African-born photographer based on Cape Cod, MA. She's passionate about storytelling and capturing real moments of human connection as well as expressive portraits. Her favorite projects are focused on women and girls and the struggles they face around the world, as well as wildlife conservation. She has worked on stories with these themes both locally and internationally.

Over the course of her career, Julia has photographed for magazines, newspapers, humanitarian and wildlife rescue organizations, businesses and private clients. Her work has appeared in publications such as the Boston Globe and New York Times and as well as a variety of other national and local publications. Among her awards, she has received a Cape Cod Arts Foundation Fellowship, an Art Within Reach grant and an Alexia Foundation student grant and her work has been exhibited on Cape Cod and elsewhere.

Julia completed a B.A. at Brandeis University, an M.F.A. in writing at Cornell University and a Masters in Photojournalism at Syracuse University's Newhouse School.

Her blog, Apertures and Anecdotes features photographs from around the globe and the stories behind them. Julia has spent time teaching photography to children in Rwanda as well as to tribal Samburu Women at the On'gan Women's Cooperative in Kenya. She also teaches photography workshops and classes locally and internationally and is a resident photographer at the Cultural Center of Cape Cod where she has a studio/gallery.
